Call for Papers

Journal of Asian Development Studies (JADS) with ISSN 2304-375X is blind peer review international journal and quarterly published in March, June, September and December of every year. All the submitted research work has gone through a fast track review process and requires four to six weeks for review process. We accept quality research work in the field of Economics, Sociology, Psychology, Demography, Gender Studies, Governance Issues, Social Issues, Political Science, International Relations, Business, Human Resource Management and all other issues regarding Development at national and international level. All submitted articles should be the original work of author and not under review process for any other publication.

The main focus of JADS is to promote research based activities in development studies and provide an opportunity to research community to share their research work with each other. JADS is also planning to launch a platform where researchers and scholars of development studies share and interact with each other for the promotion of development studies.

You are requested to submit original research work at jads724@gmail.com for review process and also visit our website at www.muhammadon.org for news, upcoming events and for opportunities for researchers. It is also informed that there is no submission fee, but if your research work has been accepted by our editorial board then there will be processing fee of US$ 49 charged for each article. Before publication of accepted article, author should have to provide a letter that it is original work of the author and allow JADS to publish.

JADS editorial board takes a swift decision on every manuscript. If manuscript be accepted after the blind-peer reviewed then author(s) will be informed within four to six weeks and article is published in the next issue. A manuscript must be typed with 1.5 spaced, 12 font size in Times New Roman format and submitted electronically at jads724@gmail.com
